Affairs in the Cumberland Coal Re-gion—Contest of Labor Against Cap-ital—Paying Off and Closing the Mines Bumors that New Miners are to be Introduced.

A dispatch to the Baltimore Sun from Frostburg, Mal, dated the 20th, says:

A traveler passing through this pictureaque country—the great Cumberland coal region—thirty-four miles long by about five miles wide, would be struck with its natural beauty and attractiveness, but would see nothing to indicate the glant struggle going on here between labor and capital. He would not, on the surface, see any signs to indicate that three thousand miners and eight humbred laborors, carpenters and mechanics, aggregating, with their families, fitteen thousand two hundred, were contending in all the carnestness of their nature against the representatives of 755, 000,000 invested in mining and shipment of the semi-bituminous coals of this region. Yet such a glant contest list progress, and misting such headway had it is thought in tramp of the semi-bituminous coals of this region. Yet such a glant contest list in progress, and mistor admit the contending parties the hidd discussion in speace, and all are waiting the list of the partial of the partial of the semi-bituminous combined coal companies it is a matter of profit or loss, while to the mineral it means so partialion. The order and quictude of this region is wonderful. Along the line of the railroad the employee are seen on helidays, but now they are at their homes fixing up their gardens and doing similar domestic work, not standing in groups talking the struck of the region of the men and the regulations governing them seem to be exceptionally good. The men have returned all the tools belonging to the companies, and the morrow the formal discharge of all the miners herotofore company will then be at liberty to hire them as the coal country of the men of the other way and the companies in the said all intercourse between the company will then be at liberty to hire them as the coal proposed in the partial of the supposed of the miners to be the fixed of the supposed of the coal proported payment in trull at sixty-dive cents per ton for all coal mines between March 1 and time.

It is currently rumored this evening that the coal companies have agreed to have a conference with a committee appointed by the miners, to be held in Baltimore at an early day, for the discussion of their differences, with a view of adjusting them, but the feeling is not buoyant that the conference will effect anything.

Railroad Items.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is building a number of resiaurant-cars especially for its ilmited express running between the East and Chicago. They will not be run as part of the train, but will be attached at meal hours, and detached when the passengers conclude eating. The cars will stand at designated stations with the meals prepared, and it will only be necessary, after they are coupled on, for passengers to step from the regular coaches into them and take their seats at the table.

The new Southwestern system of railroads is beginning to change somewhat the ordinary channels of commerce. In illustration of the fact transportation has just been engaged throughout the summer for some ten thousand tons of pig lead from Eureka, Nev., to New York, over the following route: From Eureka via Central Pacific to San Francisco;

thence by the Southern Pacific to El Paso;
thence by the Fouthern Pacific to El Paso;
thence by the Flexas and New Orleans to New Orleans, and from New Orleans to New York
by the Morgan Steamship Line. Formerly Eureka lead was shipped by the Central Pacific to San Francisco and thence by sail to New York. The new route has put the rate from California to a lower point than the old one, another evidence that cheap transportation, like other cheap things, is the outcome of competition.

The Sprifes in Session.

Twas at the bewitching hour of twelve—
Or some risal tor—
A sprite, quaint, familiar as an elve,
Came tapping, rapping at my door,
Crying eyermore—
in the croaking voice of Poe's "Raven"—
"slave of the lary good of sleep,
Inhabitant of 'Nod' in slumbers deep,
From your downy pitlow creep
To number four,
Which echo answered with a snore!

Thus tapped the sprite grim, with a vim,
At my door;
When rousing from my dream,
The rapping it did seem
As it Belgebub had been
With a score
Of redicking, recling scampa,
Reveiung in their prants,
And retting more!

Tap, tap, still louder grew the rapping At my door!
When quest my spouse to me, "Sinure the d-1's foot-loose free, Or the leave my one a spree, Al number four!"
When a waiting volce was heard Murchilag back the word, "Six come rouse!
